APPS to download on your child's device: (continued on pg. 2)

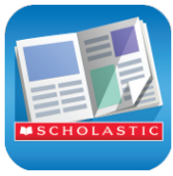

If your student is planning on bringing in a device that has the ability to download apps, we have compiled a list of FREE apps that would be a great idea for you/your child to download on their device. These apps will be extremely beneficial to have on your device for our lessons but they are not necessary if you would prefer not to.

- QR Reader - There are many options for a QR reader app, any one should do. There are ones that you can pay for but we do not need a high quality one, stick with the free options!

- Google Drive, Docs, Forms, Sheets, and Slides - These are all great google apps that can be downloaded to your device. They need will be using these in correspondence with their school google accounts.

- Scholastic Classroom Magazines (can get to by searching "storyworks" or "Scholastic" in the app store) - this is an online digital magazine from Scholastic.

- FrontRow - we will be using this as a math and reading resource. In the app store type in "front row math"

- Educreations - this is an interactive whiteboard with voice recording options. You will have to join our class using our class code and create a student account. This allows your projects to be saved and I can view them without saving or emailing.

- BrainPop - This is a great website filled with videos, interactive activities and questions in all subjects. Having the app allows your child access to all of these features.

- HaikuDeck - This is a great iPad app that allows students to create their own slides similar to powerpoint.

- Pic Collage- This is a great app to express yourself through pictures and writing.

Please be on the lookout for additional apps in the future. We are always researching and learning new technology based ideas and tools to help us make our learning more engaging.

Below you will find QR codes for each 5th grade teachers. Here you will find the teacher's wish list, or something they will be using in their classroom and is not included on the 5th grade supply list.
