GLOBAL POINTS OF PROGRESS - Colombia: International initiatives are helping Afro-Colombian communities formalize sustainable gold mining operations. Thousands of traditional miners in Colombia's Choco region have long engaged in small-scale, nonmechanical gold mining with low environmental impact. However, the country holds local community members to the same legal, technical, environmental, and labor standards as massive mining corporations - creating unwieldy bureaucratic barriers for small-scale miners.

Congratulations to our four finalists for Broughton Teacher of the Year! Cassie Blackwelder, Caroline Olson, Melony Marshall, and Lisa Patterson. We will announce our Broughton Teacher of the Year in November. Please join us in congratulating them! Read more about the finalists using this link:
