GLOBAL POINTS OF PROGRESS - Iberian Peninsula: A recent survey found that 311 Iberian Lynxes were born in Spain and Portugal last year, continuing the species' yearslong journey away from the brink of extinction. Iberian lynxes nearly disappeared due to habitat loss, long-retired government policies, and the decline of local rabbit populations, which are the spotted cat's primary prey. The kittens bring the peninsula's overall lynx population to 855, marking a 900% increase since the first census in 2002.
