GLOBAL POINTS OF PROGRESS - Argentina: Small-scale, ecological farming revived the city of Rosario and has become a model for localized food systems. Following the Argentine depression of the early 2000s, a quarter of Rosario's inhabitants lost their jobs, and families struggled to keep food on the table. So the city developed an agriculture program that converted vacant and degraded land into urban farming havens, creating new jobs and helping feed residents. Today, around 300 farmers produce food on a mixture of public and private land throughout the city, growing 2,500 tons of produce.
