GLOBAL POINTS OF PROGRESS - United States:: American Paralympic athletes now make as much money per medal as their nondisabled counterparts. Previously, Paralympian gold medalists received $7,500 while Olympians who won gold received five times as much. The U.S. Olympic Committee adjusted payments after the 2018 Winter Games, and retroactively paid Paralympians for their 36 medals earned in Pyeongchang, South Korea. With the prizes now matched across the Olympic and Paralympic competitions - $37,500 for each gold medal, $22,500 for silver, and $15,000 for bronze - the Tokyo Games are the first to pay athletes equally from the start.
