

NCNOMA Project Pipeline 2020!

Get to be an architect
for a week and learn about the world of design.

This year, NCNOMA is hosting our second annual Project Pipeline Camp!
The camp is virtual and slots will be first come, first served.

There will be one camp session co-hosted by the NOMA student chapters from North Carolina's accredited Schools of Architecture – The University of North Carolina at Charlotte and North Carolina State University. Students will be able to choose from two sites for their final project!

Dates: Monday, July 27 - Friday July 31

Project Pipeline is an architectural summer camp that was created by The National Organization of Minority Architects (NOMA) in 2005. This is the 14th year of nationwide summer camps for middle school and high school students who are interested in the profession of architecture!

Volunteers shall present students with a project site and design prompt. Our volunteers primarily consist of licensed architects, emerging design professionals and architecture students. Students will learn site analysis skills, basic programming, and thoughtful design processes. The weeklong project and activities provide students with physical drawings and models that emphasize community design. Students shall leave this camp more confident in their design abilities and the belief that what they have learned is applicable to various realms within the built environment. The project prompt will ask students to imagine a safe and empowering place for protestors, and then design a Center for Social Justice!
